Overview of the American Revolution

The American Revolution (1775-1783) was a fundamental conflict between the thirteen American colonies and Great Britain, leading to the formation of the United States of America. This period was characterized by a growing sense of American identity, fueled by issues such as taxation without representation, British military presence, and a desire for self-governance. The revolution was not only a political struggle but also a social upheaval that involved various groups, including loyalists, patriots, and indigenous peoples.

The revolution began with events such as the Boston Tea Party and the First Continental Congress, culminating in the Declaration of Independence in 1776. This document, drafted primarily by Thomas Jefferson, articulated the colonies' grievances against the British crown and established the philosophical foundation for American democracy.
